Instructions: You will find two essay questions below. Please answer each question using essay format. This means that each essay should have an introduction with a clear thesis statement, topic sentences and well-developed paragraphs, and a conclusion in which you restate your thesis and summarize your essay's main claims succinctly. Please do not spend too much time on any one question in particular.

Essay Number 1 (50%):

What do you believe is the value(s) of studying culture in its multi-faceted forms and of cultivating creativity for personal and professional development? Why do you think it is important for human learning to involve the cultivation of cultural awareness, as well as the study of cultural production? In addition, how do you think we as human beings and as educated persons, benefit from the ability to critically analyze the specific functions of cultural transmission agents (i.e., art, narrative, media, advertising, religious institutions, etc.) that have been created to disseminate knowledge, values and beliefs aimed to sustain individual communities and to validate social interactions?

Your essay should have an introduction, well-developed and coherent paragraphs, and a conclusion.

Essay Number 2 (50%):

Cultural products are tangible creations that embody and transmit the knowledge, values, norms and history of a particular society or culture. They serve as repositories of information that transcend not only the lifespans of their creators, but also of the communities within which they originated and were historically perpetuated.

Works of art (i.e., a painting, a piece of sculpture), of literature (i.e., a novel, a play, a short story), of popular culture (i.e., a film, a music video, or a documentary), a ritual, a monument or a place of worship often serve as agents of cultural transmission through which ideas, values, principles, and beliefs are shared within a specific culture, and/or between cultures. In addition, such cultural products as those listed above are often designed to interrogate, denounce and/or subvert prevailing ideas, values and norms within a particular society or culture.

In a well-developed essay, choose a cultural product that you are familiar with or that you have studied in the past and discuss how it has been used to interrogate, to subvert and/or to dispute a culture's socially sanctioned and venerated ideas, values and/or beliefs. Your essay should have an introduction, well-developed and coherent paragraphs, and a conclusion.

Recently, artificial intelligence (AI) technologies have been rapidly advancing and increasingly integrated into English as a Foreign Language (EFL) education, offering multiple pedagogical benefits (e.g., automated grading) but raising various ethical concerns (e.g., academic dishonesty).

From your perspective, what are the major opportunities and potential challenges that have emerged in the use of AI tools in EFL instruction? How can EFL educators and learners maximize the benefits of implementing AI tools in language learning while avoiding the risks of overly depending on them?

Compose a well-organized essay, including an introduction, a body, and a conclusion, to answer these questions. Use TESOL or learning theories, relevant details, and concrete examples to support your arguments. (100%)
